

Bigger than a building.

The Waterloo Economic Mobility Hub transforming how communities foster economic vitality with holistic support.

EMPOWERMENT

INCLUSIVITY

INNOVATION

COMMUNITY

EQUITY

The Waterloo Economic Mobility Hub

The Waterloo Economic Mobility Hub is a collaborative initiative designed to empower individuals and families in Waterloo by providing comprehensive resources and support for financial and economic stability. This innovative hub brings together key partners, including The Job Foundation, which focuses on financial literacy and youth empowerment; The Bank of Jabez, offering tailored financial services and community banking solutions; ONE Cedar Valley, driving workforce readiness and economic inclusion; and Iowa Legal Aid, providing accessible legal services to remove barriers to economic mobility. Together, these entities create a unified platform to address systemic challenges and foster pathways to prosperity for all members of the community.

The Community

Nestled within the historic St. John's Campus, this transformative initiative breathes new life into the Northside of Waterloo. Additionally, it delivers critical resources and is strategically located just steps away—less than two blocks—from essential services like Operation Threshold, the Food Bank, and the Women's Center for Change. This hub serves as a beacon of opportunity, fostering collaboration and access to support systems that uplift and empower residents.

The Campus

The historic St. John's Campus will not only house the WEMH but also feature 16 affordable housing units, a vibrant childcare center, and a dedicated literacy corner, creating a dynamic space for community growth and support.